

[PORTABLE MEDICAL RECORDS DEVICE]

Abstract

A portable, secure, self-contained memory device that, in combination with proprietary software, is designed to store, update and display personal medical information. The small hand carried device is connected to the USB port of a computer and provides access to medical reports by a unique password. Medical information stored in the device may be appended but not deleted or changes.